The White House Office of Faith-Based and Community Initiatives

The Office of Faith-Based and Community Initiatives has the lead responsibility to promote the President's agenda to strengthen and expand grassroots and faith-based services. The Office works with federal agencies, Congress, and state and local governments to promote policy, legal, and regulatory changes. It also works with private philanthropies, the nonprofit sector, businesses, America's many faith communities, and neighborhood groups to encourage, inform, and strengthen a renewed commitment to community service.

This is a 53-page guide with details on more than 110 potential Federal funding sources available from the five Centers for Faith-Based and Community Initiatives at the Departments of Housing and Urban Development, Labor, Health and Human Services, Education and Justice.

Centers for Faith-Based and Community Initiatives

The President has established Centers for Faith-Based and Community Initiatives in six major cabinet agencies to promote the administration's faith-based and community agenda by changing how the federal government operates. These Centers will evaluate policies, funding programs, and agency communications and technical assistance strategies to ensure that they emphasize effectiveness and hospitality to faith-based and community-based organizations.
